

PARTNERSHIP DISPUTE

Disputes arise across a broad spectrum of relationships. There are two main factors that challenge that relationship, one of which is the human element of emotion, the other, is money. And nothing is more volatile than the combination of money and emotion. Those involved are typically strong-minded individuals who are unable to reach an amicable resolution. Below are relationship disputes that can arise from a personal and business situation.

SHAREHOLDER DISPUTE

- Succession Planning
- Uneven Sweat Equity/
Capital Contribution
- Incompetence of an Owner
- Disparities in Compensation
- Differing of Opinions

FAMILY DISPUTE

- Property Settlement
- Financial Support
- Multi-Generational

ESTATE DISPUTE

- Inheritance/Will Issues
- Heir Grievance
- Breach of Fiduciary Duty

OWNERSHIP BREAKDOWN DISPUTE

- Breach of Agreement
- Unethical Practices
- Concealment of Assets
- Misaligned Philosophies
- Unexpected Setbacks

"In any dispute, each side thinks it's in the right and the other side is demons." ~ Steven Pinker

In a partnership dispute, litigation is typically the course of action taken when the conflict takes on a serious tone and both parties are in non agreement.
